NO-SCAR Mother of Pearl

SCAR MINIMISING CREAM

No Scar may be new to the UK, but Mother of Pearl has been used in skin creams for more than 3000 years. The ancient Chinese used powdered nacre for skincare, particularly for sensitive skin. Even Cleopatra, apparently, with no regard to the costs, used to dissolve pearls in vinegar before making them into a cream to keep her skin beautiful!

These days, Mother of Pearl is used increasingly to help reduce the appearance of scars. The naturally occurring nutrients in Mother of Pearl can soften and lighten scars in only a few weeks application.

It has been voted best scar minimising cream by a Sunday Times survey! No Scar Mother of Pearl was found to be the best scar reducing cream in a survey that included six other creams.

Mother of Pearl is composed of natural source nacre, which is the inner layer of Pteria oyster shells. The structure and the properties of the nacre are similar to human tissue.

So, you could say that Mother of Pearl No-Scar is a Pearl amongst skin creams!

It softens and lightens the appearance of:

- Scars caused by injury or surgical work
- Scars caused by acne
- Stretch marks.

But it can also be indispensable as an every day skin moisturiser.

It moisturises skin which helps to restore its shine and elasticity and it revitalises by enhancing the regeneration of skin tissue. This helps protect it against the drying effects of the sun and premature skin ageing.

How does Mother of Pearl work?

This wonderful ingredient from natural sources contains several kinds of protein amino acids and a lot of micro-elements, which are all beneficial to the skin. They support the production of collagen and elastin fibres important integral components of the skin.

Mother of Pearl Anti-Scar Cream also contains Allantoin, a substance that supports the regeneration of skin cells.

Allantoin has been shown to help the skin in the following ways:

- It moisturises and soothes skin
- It softens the skin
- It protects the skin against minor abrasions and the drying effects of the sun

Rub it in!

Before using No Scar, first make sure the area is dry and clean.

If applying to scars, only apply it once the scar has formed.

To get the best out of the cream you must rub it into the skin for a few minutes.

Repeat this two to three times per day.

The three most common areas where Mother of Pearl can be used are:

1. ACNE SCARS

No Scar Mother of Pearl can be used on scars, resulting from acne to help soften and moisturise the skin, leaving scars less visible.

2. STRETCH MARKS

It is a myth that stretch marks are only a problem if you are obese or pregnant. In many cases they are formed if your oestrogen levels are high, you are short of zinc in the diet or you are on steroid and hormone therapy. In these situations, collagen and elastin fibres lose their natural properties and elasticity. They seem to fracture, leaving white strands in the affected area.

You are most likely to find stretch marks on your rear, stomach, thighs and breasts. Regular use of No Scar Mother of Pearl can help diminish the appearance of stretch marks.

3. SCARS FROM OPERATIONS OR ACCIDENTS

Wounds from operations or accidents can often leave unsightly scars.

No Scar Mother of Pearl is the perfect way to reduce the appearance of these unsightly scars.

Tried and tested

The properties of No-Scar Mother of Pearl cream have been tested in an independent study carried out by dermatologists in Gdansk

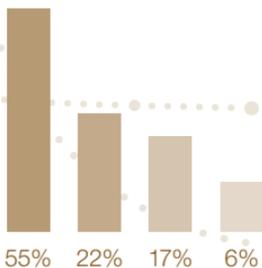

The main purpose of the study was to look at the potential applications for Mother-of-Pearl in aesthetic dermatology. To do this they decided to look at how Mother of Pearl might influence the appearance of scars that had different origins.

The results have been published in a magazine called 'Esthetic Dermatology'. Mother of Pearl No Scar cream was applied to various types of scars (burns, injury scars, surgery scars). The age of the scars varied from 6 months to 20 years.

The outcome of the study was that everyone involved found the cream to be easy and pleasant to use, even those with very sensitive skin.

After only 30 days of use, the cream was found to reduce the appearance of the scars and made them lighter but even more important was the fact that the longer the cream was used, the more effective it became. In all cases, the cream improved the physical appearance of the scars.

In one consumer study based on people with acne scars, noticeable changes were found in 22% of people after only 4 days, 17% of people after only one week, and then another 55% after 2-3 weeks. So you don't have to wait too long before you can see good results!

The researchers concluded that No Scar Mother of Pearl Cream may help improve collagen and elastin production in the skin, thus helping to reduce the visibility of scars.

Also good for those with sensitive skin

The great news is that Mother of Pearl can be used by all skin types to moisturise the skin and keep it in good condition.

Studies carried out in Gdansk have shown that it is suitable for use by those with dry and sensitive skin, including those prone to eczema, psoriasis and acne.

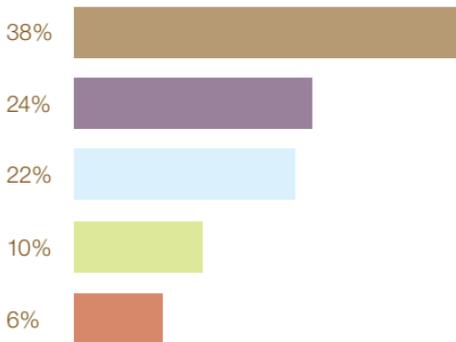

All the way from the pacific ocean

The Mother of Pearl used in this cream comes all the way from the Pacific coastal waters of Peru. The manufacturers and distributors of the cream, A-Z Medica based in Gdansk, have close relations with Peruvian Indian tribes who are renowned for their longevity.

These connections have been nurtured over many years through a Polish Catholic priest called Father Edmund Szeliga who began his Christian mission amongst the indigenous Amazonian tribes in the 1930's. He went on to spend 70 years living amongst the Indians and studying their traditions and culture.

He discovered that Mother of Pearl has been used by Peruvian Indians in skin creams for many hundreds of years to reduce the appearance of scars but also as a moisturiser for general beauty reasons.

The following is a breakdown of how No-Scar Mother of Pearl is used in Poland today - having been on the market over there for eight years. It is now the largest selling cream for reducing the appearance of scars in that market.

-  Brown People with general scars
-  Purple People with stretch marks
-  Blue People with acne scars
-  Green People who want to improve their skin condition
-  Red For wrinkles

To conclude

Mother of Pearl has been used for thousands of years and will continue to be of interest to researchers interested in finding natural source solutions to skin care. The feedback now from studies over the years is that Mother of Pearl has exceptional benefits for the skin.

Agnieska's story

HOW NO-SCAR MOTHER OF PEARL WORKED ON MY ABDOMINAL SCARS

'I galloped across the green countryside, the wind whipping through my hair. Suddenly my horse stumbled. I clutched the reins, but it was too late - I was falling.

At the hospital I was barely conscious as the doctor described my injuries.

'You've ruptured your liver' he said. 'You need emergency surgery.'

When I came round from the op, I had an incision from my chest down to my lower stomach. But I was too ill to care.

As the months passed, I watched the scar grow thick, raised and dark pink. Now that I was better, I did care - a lot.

The scar was about a foot long and so ugly. My friends would ask me to go to the beach or to the swimming pool with them. 'I can't, ' I'd say. 'I'm busy.'

I couldn't tell them the real reason. That I hated my scar. I couldn't bear the thought of seeing it.

I tried so many different ointments on it, but nothing seemed to work.

Then, one day, my mum suggested I try Mother of Pearl Anti-Scar Cream.

I started rubbing it into my scar twice a day for five minutes. Within two weeks I noticed the scar was paler and softer. It was working!

I've been using the cream on and off ever since. The changes aren't as dramatic as they were at first, but the scar's still fading slowly - it's fantastic.

Once I'd never show off my belly. Now I want my belly button pierced so I can show it to everyone.'

Jacek's story

HOW MY 17 STITCH SCAR WAS MADE TO LOOK ALMOST INVISIBLE BY NO-SCAR MOTHER OF PEARL CREAM.

The year was 2003. I remember I was to go to Ireland to play golf. Two days before the journey I woke up in the morning and went to the closet to take some clothes and when I slammed the door quite a heavy glass vase (around 9 lbs.) fell on my head and cut a huge slice off my skin on the forehead. My cat must have moved it towards the edge of the shelf. I remember how astonished I was to see so much blood. Then my wife called an ambulance and I was taken to a hospital where I had seventeen stitches.

The paramedic said there would be no chance for my forehead to fully recover and that due to the structure of the injury I would always have a big scar on my forehead.

After I had the stitches removed and the scab had healed, I started using Mother of Pearl cream. For approx. 2 months I rubbed it in the scar 2 times a day and I could almost spot from day to day the changes.

I continued to use No-Scar twice daily and I succeeded to make it very small and hardly noticeable at all. These days people don't seem to notice anymore whereas in the early days it was always the first topic of conversation.

I really believe that No-Scar Mother of Pearl cream proved the paramedic wrong and that this is borne out by the evidence in the photos. I still keep a tub of my cream in my bathroom and use it occasionally on my scar. I play a lot of golf and so my skin can be exposed to the elements. I find that No-Scar Mother of Pearl is absolutely brilliant for moisturising and protecting my skin.
